adesso integrates IT Management services under one family brand

Subsidiary SITGATE AG integrated into adesso AG. Executive director Holger Danowsky new member of the adesso board of management

Dortmund, 2 August 2010* – By merging SITGATE AG into the parent company adesso AG, former SITGATE services in the field of IT management are being integrated into the existing adesso portfolio. In addition to offering industry-specific consulting services and software development, this step is expanding fulfilment capacities to provide operation and maintenance services for developed solutions. The integration is also pooling adesso’s know-how in cutting the total cost of ownership of existing data centres. In the course of the integration, Holger Danowsky (49), former SITGATE executive director, was appointed to the adesso AG Executive Board in July and heads the IT Management Consulting activities.

“By integrating the subsidiary into the family brand, we are enhancing our services in the field of IT management. SITGATE has long-standing experience in offering consulting services dedicated to designing and strategically implementing efficient IT management, and therefore complements our know-how perfectly,” explains Rüdiger Striemer, adesso’s Executive Board member responsible for Software Development and Corporate Communications.

adesso and SITGATE have considerable experience in conducting projects designed to optimise IT operations. adesso’s offerings in this fields include supporting the IT organisation in identifying and implementing necessary services and products, consolidating complex infrastructures, methods to sustainably cut total cost of ownership, supporting sophisticated sourcing projects as well as application management for complex application landscapes.

By merging the subsidiary into adesso AG the office network has expanded. Aachen and Luxembourg are now further adesso locations.
